

Hi Anthony.

I read with interest your comments in a recent Daily Telegraph article, about your efforts to have a Skate Park in Rushcutters Bay Park.

I have lived in the area for 10 years Anthony, and you should be ashamed of yourself. I punched in your name to see what you looked like and then I realized... you obviously have a self-esteem problem. Understood.

The continued 'garbage' out of your mouth about the Skate Park is beyond even thinking about. But to humor you...

"...the heritage listing might hold them up it won't stop them." Wow, that's a beauty. You will continue to fight Anthony. You're a hero!

"It just means more red tape, more boxes we have to tick but technically it shouldn't prevent us from doing it,"

Nope, nothing will stop the brilliance of Marano!

"The new site is on a triangle not used by anyone." What planet are you living on Anthony. Now, you're a liar.

"I've never seen anyone there." In fairness, maybe you just need glasses.

"Grass doesn't grow properly and it's in the shade next to the Vibe Hotel..." Yep Anthony, right next door to the Vibe! More lies.

"... not the harbour." Now that is an amazing observation Anthony.

"The noise of the traffic will drown out any noise of skateboard wheels on concrete." Oh great. The subtle and relaxing noise of "Skate Park wheels on concrete." ...perfect for a Sydney Harbor (now) Heritage Listed Park. The more noise the better, hey Anthony?

Do you by some chance, live next to a skate park Anthony? If you did, you would know all about the noise Skate Park's emit.

"... maybe skating years ago was perceived as being an activity of delinquent teenagers or young adult drop outs."

On the assumption that you don't live near a Skate Park Anthony, maybe you SHOULD. Then you will know exactly what happens, regarding the social activities Skate Parks attract.

And as for the caring dad in the article...

"The area where they want to build the skate park..." is "...at the back near the train and the traffic."

Yep Mr Bowman, Marano wants to build a Skate Park on the edge of one of the busiest highways in Sydney. An ideal spot for your young children to play... not! And what if on the way to this park, they fell into oncoming traffic? But children don't Skate to a Skate Park do they?

Mr Bowman sounds like a very smart dad Anthony.

Oh ...and I love your forward thinking Anthony!

Put your glasses on and look at a large tree which is not doing too well in the park. It just happens to be near the spot you want to build the Skate Park. Compared to ALL of the other trees in Rushcutters Bay Park, it's not doing too well, is it Anthony?

Keep up the good fight Anthony. You make a lot of sense.

Regards,
Stewart.
